

Your grim "Host," Raymond Johnson's really a kindly soul who loves his hearth.

Leslie Woods survives these weekly horrors.

INNER SANCTUM

● It is a cold night in the dead of winter. A wind howls down the deserted street, whines into the chimney. There is no moon. And inside, you are alone. Ladies and gentlemen, this is not the night for you to tune in "Inner Sanctum" on your portable. Listen to a sports resume; listen to some guy telling Jack Benny's old jokes; listen to the Quiz Kids, only for the sake of be-kind-to-your-nerves-and-relieve-the-strain-on-psychopathic-wards-week, stay away from the "Inner Sanctum." But of course, you won't pay any attention to us, so—Ssh, a creaking slow sound—the opening of some secret door—the door to "Inner Sanctum." Its hinges are rusty; the mysteries that lie hidden behind it are very old. Mysteries of blood and greed, and suddenly, like a shriek in the night—MURDER! Step a little closer now. Just a little. And meet Raymond. Have you met Raymond before? He is your host of "Inner Sanctum." He is an eerie voice from out of the depths of some forgotten tomb. Raymond's patter goes something like: "Ah, come right in and make yourselves at home. Now, now, a few ghosts aren't going to scare you. Everyone knows that a ghost is just an old dead body, just a corpse. And a corpse can't hurt you, can it? Or can it, hmm?" This introduction, guaranteed to make you think Raymond a lovable sort of fiend, is followed by several evil-sounding chuckles. After that, comes the gruesome story scheduled for the particular evening, and from then—you're strictly on your own, kids. Don't come screaming to us ... And while you're listening, entranced, to horror-ble killings, give a thought to the man behind 'em. Meaning Hi Brown. He's the mastermind of these thrillers. A mere 32 years old, he's been in radio for 15, and has produced and directed over 15,000 broadcasts. He once had 35 shows going each week! The listening public knows nothing of him, though. Matter of fact, he's a puzzle within the radio industry itself. Answers his own mail, never has had an office (but neither can you reach him at home), and is kept posted by means of a message service which relays his phone calls to him. How this amazing service keeps up with him in his daily peregrinations, is a mystery worthy of "Inner Sanctum." He's tall, dark, and uh huh, handsome. Wants to be an actor. And might have been a lawyer but he flunked his bar exam, for which he is now "most grateful." ... As for Raymond (Raymond E. Johnson), we are told he's really a good guy and tho we don't believe it, pass the info along to you, for what it's worth. They claim he's a "country squire at heart; loves music—Dorsey, Stowkowski, etc." But, and listen carefully, his most prized possession is a bronze death-mask of Beethoven. So there. Well, as Raymond says, "Goodby all, and er, don't kill your friends—they won't like you."
